MORE, Sir Thomas.

Lord Chancellor of England. Born in London 1480. Went to Canterbury College (now New Church, Oxford) 1497. Entered a student of Lincoln's Inn 1499. Judge of the Sheriff's Court 1508. Made Treasurer of the Exchequer and knighted by Henry VIII. Speaker of the House of Commons 1523. Lord Chancellor 1530, which, three years after, he resigned. Not having joined the Reformers, he refused the oath of supremacy, and was committed to the Tower, and beheaded 1535. He was one of the most illustrious men that England has produced—pious, learned, magnanimous, and of great integrity. His works in English, published in 1557, have become excessively rare, no other edition having been printed. His works, written in Latin, were published at Basil, 1563, Louvain, 1566, and Franc. 1689, each in 1 vol. folio.

MORERI, Lewis.

A Roman Catholic divine. Born in Provence 1643. Studied at the Jesuits' College at Aix and at Lyons, in which town he became a successful preacher. Died 1680. His celebrated Dictionary was originally published in 1674, 1 vol. folio, the second, enlarged into 2 vols., was prepared by him and published 1681. Numerous editions followed successively, with additions and corrections by Le Clerc and others. The last and best is that of 1759, in 10 vol. It forms a vast storehouse of valuable information, particularly in the biographical part. The numerous errors in the earlier edition originated Bayle's great Dictionary, but his work is restricted to select articles.

Le grande dictionnaire historique, ou mélange curieux de l'histoire sacrée et profane, qui contient en abrégé l'histoire fabuleuse des dieux et héros de l'antiquité païenne: les vies et les actions remarquables des patriarches, des empereurs, des rois, des princes illustres, des capitaines, des papes, des saints martyrs et confesseurs, des pères de l'église, des évêques, des cardinaux et autres prélats célèbres, des héréfiarques et des schismatiques: l'histoire des religions et sectes des Chrétiens, des Juifs et des païens: des conciles des auteurs, des philosophes, des ordres religieux et militaires, des généalogies, la description des empires, &c. MORINUS, John.

Born at Blois 1591, of a Protestant family. Became a Roman Catholic. Entered the Oratory in 1618, and soon made himself known by his erudition. Died 1659. He was an eminent divine and Oriental scholar, intimately acquainted with the Councils and the Fathers, and by the works he published entitled to rank among the most learned men of his age. He was a zealous advocate for the superiority of the Samaritan Pentateuch and the Septuagint version over the Hebrew text. He was consulted by Urban VIII. on his project of union with the Oriental Churches.

This work was published by R. Simon. It contains the correspondence of Morinus with various learned men on different points of ecclesiastical antiquity. It is preceded by a life, or rather a satire against Morinus.

Other works: Diatribe Elenchica de Sinceritate Hebræi Græcique textûs dignoscenda, adversus insanas quorumdam Hæreticorum Calumnias, 8°. Par. 1639. Opuscula Hebræo-Samaritana (containing a Samaritan Grammar and Lexicon). Opera posthuma de Catechumenorum Expiatione, de Sacramento Confirmationis, &c. 4°. 1703. Declaration, &c. 1654. This was an exposé of the defects in the government of the Oratory. It was suppressed, and is of great rarity. Morinus also edited an edition of the Septuagint, printed with a Latin Translation and Notes by Nobilius, 3 vol. folio, 1628; or, with another title, 1641. Also the Samaritan Pentateuch printed in Le Jay's Polyglott.

MORINUS, Stephen.

A learned Protestant divine and Orientalist. Born at Caen, in Normandy, 1625. Studied at Sedan under Peter Du Moulin, and at Leyden under Rivetus. Minister near Caen 1649, and at Caen 1664. Professor at Amsterdam soon after 1685. Died 1700.

An ingenious writer. Born at Perth 1762. He was for ſome years a member of the ſociety of Glaſſites, from whom he ſeceded and founded a diſtinct ſect, of which he became the miniſter. Died 1809. Beſides the following work, which is of conſiderable utility, he publiſhed a Dictionary of the Bible, 2 vol. 8°. anonymouſly.

An introductory key to the firſt four books of Moſes; being an attempt to analyſe theſe books by exhibiting their figurative nature; and particularly to ſhew that the great deſign of the things recorded therein was the ſufferings of Chriſt and the following glory. 8°. Perth, 1810

MORISON, John, D.D.

Miniſter of Trevor Chapel, Brompton. Independent.

An expoſition of the Book of Pſalms, explanatory, critical, and devotional, intended chiefly to aid private Chriſtians in the enlightened peruſal of compoſitions, in which the national hiſtory of the Jews and the perſonal experience of David are often blended with the ſpirit of prophecy. 3 vol. 8°. L. 1832

In this work the author, while "adhering ſtrictly to the literal meaning of the text, is careful at the ſame time not to overlook either its prophetical or typical character. The authoriſed verſion is properly retained, and the expoſition follows each ſucceſſive verſe; while the critical notes, often very inſtructive, are commodiouſly placed at the foot of the page."—Rev. MORLAND, Sir Samuel.

Born in Berkſhire 1625. Educated at Winchester School and Magdalen College, Cambridge. Became Aſſiſtant to Secretary Thurlowe, and was ſent by Cromwell to remonſtrate with the Duke of Savoy on his conduct in perſecuting the Proteſtants of Piedmont. On his return, in 1658, he received public thanks for his ſervices, and publiſhed the now rare work noted below. Having detected a plot laid by Cromwell to entrap the exiled family into England for their deſtruction, he was created a baronet at the Reſtoration. Died about 1696. He publiſhed ſome works on mathematics.

MORNING EXERCISES.

This celebrated body of divinity by various eminent divines of the ſeventeenth century originated in the times of the civil wars. The ſermons were delivered at an early morning ſervice ſet apart for prayer for the welfare of the public, and for particular caſes and exhortations to the people. They treat on a variety of uſeful ſubjects, practical as well as doctrinal, in anſwer to queſtions propoſed, and ſome of them on caſes of conſcience. Tillotſon, afterwards Archbiſhop of Canterbury, was one of the preachers. The volumes had become exceedingly ſcarce when reprinted in 1844. This edition was edited with great ability and care.

Morning Exerciſes at Cripplegate, St. Giles-in-the-Fields, and in Southwark, being divers ſermons preached A.D. 1659–1689, by ſeveral miniſters of the goſpel in or near London. Fifth edition, carefully collated and corrected, with notes and tranſlations by James Nichols. 6 vol. 8°. Lond. 1844

Vol. 1. Exerciſes at Cripplegate, or ſeveral caſes of conſcience practically reſolved.

NAPHTALI; or, the wrestlings of the Church of Scotland for the kingdom of Christ, contained in a true and short deduction thereof, from the beginning of the Reformation to 1667, with the last speeches and testimonies of some who have died for the truth since 1660. Sm. 8°. 1680

Also, in Scots Worthies by M'Gavin, vol. 2

The reasoning part of this celebrated work was composed by Sir James Stuart of Goodtrees. The historical part by James Stirling, Minister of Paisley.

A survey of the insolent and infamous libel entitled Naphtali, &c. Wherein several things falling in debate in these times are considered, and some doctrines in Lex Rex and the apologetical narration (called by this author Martyrs), are brought to the touchstone: Part 1, representing the dreadful aspect of Naphtali's principles upon the powers ordained by God. 4°. s. l. 1668

NAPIER, John, Lord of Merchiston, in Scotland.

The celebrated inventor of logarithms. Born 1550. Studied at the University of St. Andrews, after which he made the tour of France, Italy, and Germany. On his return he applied himself chiefly to the study of mathematics and the Scriptures. His work on the Revelation indicates the most acute investigation.

A plaine discovery of the whole Revelation of St. John, set down in two treatises; the one searching and proving the true interpretation thereof; the other applying the same paraphrastically and historically to the text. Whereunto are annexed certain Oracles of Sibylla, and also an epistle omitted in the last edition. Fifth edition, corrected and amended. 4°. Edin. 1645

ORICELLARIUS, Bernardus.

De urbe Roma, ſeu Latinus commentarius ejuſdem in Pub. Victorem, ac Sext. Rufum de regionibus urbis. Tartinii Rer. Ital. Script. 2. 755

ORIGEN.

An illuſtrious father of the Church, ſurnamed Adamantius, from his invincible firmneſs. Born at Alexandria, in Egypt, about 185. He was a pupil of Ammonius, the philoſopher, while Clemens Alexandrinus was his preceptor in theology. Became Catechiſt, or Profeſſor of Sacred Learning, in the Church of Alexandria, and devoted himſelf to a life of great auſterity. Thrown into priſon and tortured in the Decian perſecution. Died at Tyre, aged ſixty-nine. As he excelled in the knowledge of the Holy Scriptures, his commentaries are valuable, although his interpretations are often myſtical and allegorical. In his other works he advances opinions more agreeable to the Platonic philoſophy than the Scriptures. He held the doctrine of the final reſtoration of the ſouls of bad men and devils. Beſt edition of his works, Par. 1733–59. In this edition the Homilies on St. Matthew, which appear in the old editions, are given in the form of commentaries, and marked Vetus Interpretatio. Beſt edition of his Hexapla, that of Montfaucon, 1713.

Opera omnia, quæ Græce vel Latine tantum exſtant et ejus nomine circumferuntur, ex variis editionibus et codicibus manu exaratis, Gallicanis, Italicis, Germanicis, et Anglicis, collecta, recenſita, Latine verſa, atque annotationibus illuſtrata, cum copioſis indicibus, vita auctoris, et multis diſſertationibus. Opera et ſtudio Domni Caroli Delarue, Preſbyteri et Monachi Benedictini è Congregatione S. Mauri. 4 vol. Folio. Par. 1733–59

OWEN, John, D.D.

The most eminent and learned of the Independent divines. Born at Stadham, Yorkshire, 1616. Studied at Queen's College, Oxford. After taking his degree in arts, he turned Nonconformist, and in the Rebellion distinguished himself so zealously that he was presented to the living of Fordham, in Essex, from whence he removed to Coggeshall. He preached the sermon before the House of Commons on the day after the murder of Charles I. Dean of Christ Church, Oxford, 1651. Served the office of Vice-Chancellor with great credit. Deprived at the Restoration. Minister of a congregation in Leadenhall Street, London, 1673. Died 1683. In doctrine he was a Calvinist. He was a divine of great talents, profoundly learned, and moderate and candid in controversy. His works were for the first time collected in 1826, in 21 vol. 8°., to which was added the Commentary on Hebrews, formerly printed in 7 vol. 8°.; in all 28 vol. A new edition of the works, without the Commentary on Hebrews, edited with great ability by the Rev. Dr. Goold, has recently been published at Edinburgh, in 16 vol. 8°. Being a favourer of the Proteſtant religion he was proſecuted for hereſy and ſuffered death 1570. His work on the Benefit of Chriſt's Death was publiſhed anonymouſly in 1544, but it is now entirely loſt in the original. The Engliſh tranſlation having become extremely ſcarce, was lately reprinted by the Religious Tract Society.

The benefit of Chriſt's death; or, the glorious riches of God's free grace; which every true believer receives by Jeſus Chriſt and him crucified: firſt compiled and printed in the Italian tongue, and afterwards tranſlated and printed in the French tongue; and out of French into Engliſh. [Anonymous.] By A. G. Fourth edition. Sm. 8°. Lond. 1638

PARKER, Thomas.

A Puritan divine. Son of Robert Parker. Was ſometime of Newbery, in Berkſhire; went to New England 1634, and became Paſtor of the church at Newbery there. Died 1677.

The viſions and prophecies of Daniel expounded; wherein the miſtakes of former interpreters are modeſtly diſcovered, and the true meaning of the text made plain by the words and circumſtances of it. The ſame alſo illuſtrated by clear inſtances taken out of hiſtories which relate the events of time myſtically foretold by the holy prophet. Amongſt other things of note, touching the two witneſſes, the New Jeruſalem, the Thouſand Years, &c., here is propounded a new way for the finding out of the determinate time ſignified by Daniel in his ſeventy weeks; when it did begin, and when we are to expect the end thereof. 4°. Lond. 1646

PARVISH, Samuel.

An inquiry into the Jewiſh and Chriſtian revelation. Wherein all the prophecies relating to the Jewiſh Meſſiah are conſidered, and compared with the perſon and character of Jeſus Chriſt, and the times of the goſpel; the authority of the canon of Scripture; the nature and uſe of miracles, &c.; in a dialogue between an Indian and a Chriſtian. 8°. Lond. 1739

PASCAL, Blaise.

One of the moſt illuſtrious writers that France has produced; a mathematician of the firſt rank; a ſublime philoſopher, and an eloquent apologiſt of the Chriſtian religion. Born at Clermont, in Auvergne, 1623. Studied at Paris, and at an early age made important diſcoveries in mathematics. At the age of twenty-four he renounced human learning, and devoted himſelf to a life of religious meditation, mortification, and prayer, in cloſe intimacy with the Janſeniſts of Port-Royal, in whoſe cauſe againſt the Jeſuits he publiſhed in 1656 his celebrated Provincial Letters, under the name of Louis de Montalte, "which," ſays Voltaire, "may be conſidered a model of eloquence and humour; the beſt comedies of Molière have not more wit than the firſt part of them, and the ſublimity of the latter part is equal to anything in Boſſut." His Thoughts on Religion, publiſhed poſthumouſly, from a collection of his looſe papers, intended to form part of a work againſt atheiſts and unbelievers, have enjoyed great reputation. A much enlarged edition, from the originals, was edited by Faugère, 2 vol. 8°., Par. 1844. Paſcal died 1662. His Œuvres were collected and publiſhed in 5 vol. 8°., 1779; well edited by the Abbé Boſſut. They were reprinted 5 vol. 8°., Paris, 1819, with an eſſay by M. François "Sur les meilleurs ouvrages écrits en proſe dans la langue Françoiſe."

PASCHASIUS Ratbertus.
A celebrated Benedictine of the ninth century. Born at Soiſſons. Elected Abbot of the Abbey of Corbey 844, which he afterwards reſigned. Died 865. In his work, De Corpore Chriſti, he taught that the ſame body of Chriſt which aſcended into heaven, is preſent in the Euchariſt. This treatiſe made a great noiſe, and was anſwered by Bertram, John Scotus Erigena, and others. He is ſaid to have been the firſt who introduced the doctrine of tranſubſtantiation.

PAUL Sarpi.
Commonly called Father Paul; alſo, Fra Paolo, or Pietro Soave Polano. Born at Venice 1552. Entered the Order of Servites and became principal of his order. In 1602 he wrote againſt the Papal power, in the diſpute between the Pope and Venice. After which he lived in a very retired manner, and in his ſeclufion wrote the Hiſtory of the Council of Trent in Italian, the MS. of which was ſent by Sir Henry Wotton to King James I., ſo that the firſt edition was printed at London in 1619, in folio. The French tranſlation with Courayer's notes is the moſt uſeful edition. The works of Father Paul in Italian were publiſhed in 8 vol. 4°, 1761–68, and in 24 vol. 8°., Napoli, 1789–90.

PEARSON, John, D.D., F.R.S., Bp. of Chester.

A very learned and eminent divine. Born at Snoring, Norfolk, 1612. Educated at Eton School, and King's College, Cambridge. Presented to the living of Torrington, Suffolk, 1640. Minister of St. Clement's, Eastcheap, London, 1650. Soon after the Restoration he was presented to the Rectory of St. Christopher's, London, installed Prebendary of Ely, Archdeacon of Surrey, and made Master of Jesus College, Cambridge. Margaret Professor 1661. Master of Trinity College, Cambridge, 1662. Bishop of Chester 1673. Died 1686. He was considered an excellent preacher, and one of the greatest divines of his age. His Exposition of the Creed is one of the most finished pieces of theology in our language; the style being just, the periods well turned, and the method very exact. Numerous editions of it have been published, in 4°., folio, and 8°. The latest edition in which the author made any additions or alterations was the third, 1669, folio. The editions by Dobson, Burton, Nichols, and by Chevallier, have all been well edited.

An exposition of the Creed. Twelfth edition, revised and corrected. Folio. Lond. 1741

PETAVIUS, Dionysius [Petau Denis].

A Jesuit, and one of the most distinguished literary men of his time. Born at Orleans 1583. Educated at Paris. Appointed Professor of Philosophy at Bourges in his nineteenth year. Entered the Society of Jesuits at twenty-two. Professor of Theology at Paris 1621, which he filled with great reputation for twenty-two years. Died 1652. His Opus de Theologicis Dogmatibus is full of choice erudition. Muratori regarded the author as the restorer of dogmatic theology. It is to be regretted that he did not complete his design. The best edition is that by Zacharia, 1757. The best of his other great work, De Doctrina Temporum, is the edition of 1705. Petavius edited Synesius, Epiphanius, and other works.

Opus de theologicis dogmatibus, nunc primum septem voluminibus comprehensum, in meliorem ordinem redactum, auctoris ipsius vita, ac libris quibusdam numquam in hoc opere editis locupletatum, Francisci Antonii Zachariæ ex eadem Societate Jesu extensium principum Bibliothecæ Præfecti dissertationibus, ac notis uberrimis illustratum. 7 vol. PLATINA, or DE SACCHI, Bartolomeo.

A celebrated hiſtorian. Born at Piadena (in Latin, Platina), 1421. He firſt embraced a military life, but after ſome time devoted himſelf to literature, went to Rome, and was appointed one of the College of Abbreviators, of which he was deprived by Paul II., and puniſhed for complaining. Made Librarian to the Vatican by Sextus IV. Died 1481. His Lives of the Popes are written with an elegance of ſtyle, and diſcover powers of reſearch and diſcrimination which were then rare. He writes with freedom of the popes. Some paſſages are omitted in late editions. In the edition of 1574 the paſſage in the life of St. Anacletus, "Uxorem habuit in Bithynia," is for the firſt time changed into "Uxorem non habens."

A famous myſtic divine and philoſopher. Born at Metz 1646. Studied at Baſle 1664, and at Heidelberg 1668. Became Paſtor of a Church at Amveil. Died 1719. He was a diſciple of Madame Bourignon.

The divine œconomy; or an univerſal ſyſtem of the works and purpoſes of God towards men demonſtrated. Written originally in French. 6 vol. 8°. Lond. 1713

Vol. 1. The œconomy of man's creation, wherein the exiſtence and nature of God is demonſtrated; the origin and properties of ideas, and of all beings, and particularly of man as he was created by God, are plainly laid open.

Vol. 2. The œconomy of ſin, wherein are explained its poſſibility, its futurition, its nature, its event, and effects, both in angels and in man, and wherein alſo is demonſtrated the truth of original ſin.

Vol. 3. The œconomy of the reſtoration of man before the Incarnation of Jeſus Chriſt; wherein are fundamentally demonſtrated man's impotence to recover himſelf, and the neceſſity of the Mediator's intervention. Wherein alſo the nature and properties of the grace of God, its obſtacles, and the different diſpenſations of external means given to remove them ever ſince the fall of Adam to the firſt coming of Jeſus Chriſt, are fully explained.

Vol. 4. The œconomy of the reſtoration of man after the incarnation of Chriſt. Wherein, after ſome account of our Saviour's firſt coming, is ſhewn the nature and eſtabliſhment of the Chriſtian Church; of its ſacraments and miniſtry; its decay, the riſe of ſchiſms; the duty of a good man in that reſpect; as alſo that corrupt Chriſtendom ſhall be deſtroyed to make way for the renovation of the Church and the glorious appearance of Chriſt upon the earth.

Vol. 5. The œconomy of the co-operation of man with the operation of God: wherein the eſſential and moſt important points of religion and divinity, ſuch as the grace of God, faith, purification, or ſanctification, juſtification, regeneration, and perſeverance, are radically and fundamentally explained.

Vol. 6.

The œconomy of univerſal providence for the ſalvation of all men. Where is alſo demonſtrated the nullity of the doctrine of modern predeſtination. With the analyſis and ſhort explication of St. Paul's Epiſtle to the Romans.

The principles of real and internal religion aſſerted and vindicated, or,—

1. A letter to Mr. Le Clerc, author of the Bibliothèque Univerſelle.

The running title of the three volumes is, "An exact History of Popes' intolerable Usurpations upon the Liberties of the Kings and Subjects of England and Ireland." Some copies of the third volume have the following title, "The History of King John, K. Henry III., and the most illustrious K. Edward I." 1670. Copies of Vol. 1 and 2 are exceedingly rare; most of the impressions, especially of vol. 1, having been destroyed in the fire of London. Part of a fourth volume was printed, of which only one copy is known to exist. It was formerly in the library at Stow, afterwards in that of the Earl of Bridgewater, and is now in the library of Lincoln's Inn. It has no title, the first leaf is unpaged, after which follows pp. 1 to 400, being all that is known to have been printed.

QUESNEL, Pasquier.

A celebrated divine. Born at Paris 1634. Studied at the Sorbonne. Member of the Congregation of the Oratory 1657. Received prieſt's orders two years afterwards. Devoted himſelf to the ſtudy of the Scriptures and of the Fathers, and at the age of twenty-eight was appointed Firſt Director of the Inſtitution belonging to his Order at Paris. He edited the works of St. Leo, 2 vol. 4°. 1675, in which he defended the Gallican Church againſt the Court of Rome. This edition was condemned by a decree of the Congregation of the Index. Exiled 1681, and joined Arnauld and other Janſeniſts at Bruſſels. Died 1719. His work on the New Teſtament continues to be admired for its fervid piety and ſolid learning. It gave riſe to the famous Bull Unigenitus, in which 101 propoſitions extracted from it were condemned; in conſequence of which a long and important controverſy aroſe on the doctrines of grace, the circulation of the Scriptures among the people, &c. The part on the Four Goſpels was republiſhed in Engliſh with an introductory eſſay by Daniel Wilſon, the preſent Biſhop of Calcutta, 3 vol. 12°.

RICALTOUN, Robert.

An eminent divine of the Church of Scotland. Miniſter of Hobkirk. Born 1691. Died 1769. In his writings there is great depth of Chriſtian and metaphyſical acuteneſs, and an original mode of thinking and expreſſion. "He was," ſays John Newton, "certainly a man of ſtrong, comprehenſive mind; and if not an elegant, he was a masterly writer. His metaphyſics are, I think, a good beſom to ſweep away the fine-ſpun cobweb, ſceptical metaphyſics, which at preſent are too much in faſhion." His works have become exceedingly ſcarce.

ROUSSEAU, John James.

Born 1712; died 1778. One of the moſt remarkable writers of the eighteenth century, and a man whoſe influence has been almoſt beyond belief. His views on education, as exhibited in the Emilie, obtained great popularity. At rare intervals he gives evidence that he was capable of appreciating virtue and religion. But, on the whole, Rouſſeau's talents were of a dangerous deſcription, and he employed his faſcinating eloquence in pulling down all moral and political principles.

SANDERSON, Robert, D.D., Bp. of Lincoln.

A learned divine, eſpecially in caſuiſtry. Born at Rotheram, Yorkſhire, 1587. Studied at Lincoln College, Oxford, where he obtained a Fellowſhip 1606. Soon after, elected Reader of Logic. Rector of Boothby Pannel, Lincolnſhire, 1619. Prebendary of Lincoln 1629. Rector of Muſton 1633. Regius Profeſſor of Divinity, Oxford, and Canon of Chriſt Church 1642. Ejected from the laſt two appointments 1643. Reſtored, and conſecrated Biſhop of Lincoln, 1660. Died 1662–3. He was a man of great piety, modeſty, learning, and abilities. He was originally a ſtrict Calviniſt, but from this he afterwards greatly relaxed. "Dr. Sanderſon," ſays Dr. Hammond, "conceives all things deliberately, dwells upon them diſcreetly, diſcerns things that differ exactly, paſſeth his judgment rationally, and expreſſes it aptly, clearly, and honeſtly." King Charles I. ſaid, that he "carried his ears to hear other preachers, but his conſcience to hear Mr. Sanderſon."

SECKER, Thomas, LL.D., Abp. of Canterbury.

An eminent divine. Born at Sibthorp, Nottinghamſhire. Educated for the miniſtry among the Diſſenters at the Academy of Mr. Jones, of Tewkſbury, along with Bp. Butler. Entered as a Gentleman Commoner, Exeter College, Oxford, 1721. Ordained Deacon 1722. Rector of Houghton-le-Spring 1724. Rector of St. James's, London, 1733. Biſhop of Briſtol 1735. Tranſlated to Oxford 1737. Dean of St. Paul's 1750. Abp. of Canterbury 1758. Died 1768. He was one of the moſt popular preachers of his time. "When Secker preaches, or when Murray pleads," Hervey obſerves, "the church is crowded and the bar is thronged." His ſermons are noble ſpecimens of practical preaching to intelligent congregations. When occaſion calls for it, he is pathetic, animated, nervous, riſing to that true ſublime which conſiſts not in pomp of diction, but in grandeur of ſentiment, expreſſed with ſimplicity and ſtrength. Beſt edition of his works, 12 vol. 8°., various years. The whole were reprinted in 6 vol. 8°., Lond. 1811.

SENECA, Lucius Annæus.

An eminent Stoic philoſopher. Born at Corduba, in Spain, the year before the Chriſtian era. His father, Marcus Annæus Seneca, was a rhetorician, and his extant works are printed with thoſe of the ſon in ſeveral editions. Lucius Annæus Seneca received his education at Rome, and became ſucceſſively quæſtor, prætor, and, ſome ſay, conſul. He was tutor to Nero, who eventually ſent him an order to put himſelf to death, which he did with equanimity. His works contain ſuch pure morality that ſome have been led to believe he was a Chriſtian. The tragedies aſcribed to him are of doubtful authenticity.

SIBBS, Richard, D.D.

A learned and pious divine. Born at Sudbury, Suffolk, 1577. Educated at St. John's College, Cambridge, where he obtained a Fellowſhip. On being ordained, he was choſen Lecturer of Trinity Church, Cambridge, the living of which he held during the laſt two years of his life. Preacher of Gray's Inn 1618, where he obtained great reputation as a preacher. Choſen Maſter of Catharine Hall, Cambridge, 1625. Died 1635. His works are held in much eſtimation, particularly his Bruiſed Reed and Soul's Conflict; to the former of which Richard Baxter ſays, he owed, in a great meaſure, his converſion. Izaak Walton wrote the following couplet in a copy of The Returning Backſlider:—

"Of this bleſt man, let this juſt praiſe be given, Heaven was in him before he was in heaven."

No complete edition of Sibbs's works has been publiſhed. The collection printed 1812, in 3 vol. 8°., contains only a ſmall portion. It is incorrectly printed, and omits the prefaces, dedications, and tables.

SIXTUS Senensis.

Born 1520, of Jewiſh parents. Early in life he embraced the Chriſtian religion, and entered the Order of St. Francis. From the age of twenty to thirty he preached in the principal towns of Italy with much reputation, but fell into ſome Judaiſing errors, for which he was impriſoned in the Inquiſition at Rome and condemned to death. Having renounced thoſe opinions, he was reſtored, and was admitted into the Order of Dominicans, and again became famous as a preacher. Died 1569. His Bibliotheca Sancta is a work of much erudition and good ſenſe, and the beſt of the kind that had then appeared. An edition with additions by Milante was publiſhed at Naples, 2 vol. folio, 1742. Sixtus Senenſis compoſed numerous works which were never publiſhed. He deſtroyed all his MSS. in his laſt illneſs.

SMECTYMNUUS.

The pſeudonyme of a celebrated tract, in anſwer to Bp. Hall. The word is made up of the initial letters of the names of the authors, who were Stephen Marſhall, Edmund Calamy, Thomas Young, Matthew Newcomen, and William Spurſtowe. It is written with great fierceneſs of ſpirit and aſperity of language, yet in a ſtyle ſuperior to that of the Puritans in general; and it was a production of no ſmall importance in its day. Bp. Hall anſwered it in his Defence of the Humble Remonſtrance, 1641; to which Smectymnuus replied, in A Vindication of the Anſwer, 1641. Bp. Hall rejoined in A Short Anſwer to the Tedious Vindication of Smectymnuus, 1641. Milton wrote An Apology for Smectymnuus.

An anſwer to a booke entituled, An Humble Remonſtrance. In which the originall of liturgy and epiſcopacy is diſcuſſed. And queres propounded concerning both. The parity of biſhops and preſbyters in Scripture demonſtrated. The occaſion of their imparity in antiquity diſcovered. The diſparity of the ancient and our moderne biſhops manifeſted. The antiquity of ruling elders in the Church vindicated. The prelaticall Church bounded. Pp. 104. 4°. Lond. 1641

SOCIETY for Promoting Christian Knowledge.

The chief deſigns of this Society are, I. Aid to national and charity ſchools, and towards the education of the poor in the doctrines and duties of Chriſtianity as taught by the Church of England; this being done by the cheap and gratuitous ſupply of books on the Society's Catalogues. II. The gratuitous ſupply and cheap diſtribution of the Holy Scriptures, the Book of Common Prayer, the Homilies of the Church, and religious books and tracts, among various claſſes of perſons in this kingdom, eſpecially ſoldiers, ſailors, and priſoners. III. Aſſiſtance to the Church in the colonies and dependencies of the Britiſh empire, by money grants towards churches, and by ſupplies of books and tracts. IV. Tranſlations of the Scriptures and the Book of Common Prayer into foreign languages.

SOCRATES.

The moſt celebrated of the ancient philoſophers. Born in Attica, B.C. 469. His father was a ſtatuary and ſculptor, and Socrates carried on the buſineſs for ſome time after his death; but employed his leiſure hours in the ſtudy of philoſophy. Afterwards taught philoſophy, and for ſome time ſerved his country in the field. Having been falſely accuſed as a contemner of the gods, he was put to death by the Athenians, B.C. 396. His opinions are deſcribed by Xenophon and Plato.

SOZOMEN, Hermias.

An eccleſiaſtical hiſtorian of the fifth century. Born at Bethelia in Paleſtine. Studied the law at Berytus, in Phœnicia, and became a pleader at the bar at Conſtantinople. He was contemporary with the hiſtorian Socrates, and his hiſtory embraces the ſame period. It is more florid and elegant, but not ſo judicious as that of Socrates. He enlarges on the monaſtic life.
